TENNESSEE CONGRESSMEN

The editor of the Tribune, yesterday morning, with great care extracted from its case where it was snugly reposing, his editorial "stuffed-club," and began with great energy to belabor the shoulders of our Washington correspondent. More noise though was made by this doughty knight than were bones broken. Now, our correspondent since he is not in easy fighting distance, we trust that this brilliant place. mind will pardon us when we reiterate the remarks which caused the journalistic anger of this stupendous intellect, signs of which can be his eye," but of his paragraphs. We will repeat the assertion of our Washington correspondent by saying that the Democratic Congressmen from Tennessee are mere nullities. The offense against the though, the giant mental capacities do think he ought to put on the gloves to do it with. Of course we

MR. EDITOR: The CHRONICLE of on all night trains. Good coaches, good the 6th inst. contains an excellent article under the caption of "From is plenty able to take care of him- the Ohio to the Atlantic." It is high self, even when his assailant is such time Knoxville should be giving ata master as the Tribune man, but tention to such a connection and the more public attention is aroused the better will it be for the interest of the

But a word in advance of what is proposed to be said in this communieation. Knoxville is peculiarily and happily situated. She has coal to the north and iron ore to the south, if not seen, not "from the expression of all around; she has quarries of marble near, and a fine tributary agricultural country; she is essentially a place marked out by Nature for an extensive manufacturing and distributing point. Had her enterprising citizens, at the conclusion of the war, held the local superiority of the spot steadily in view, and worked unceasingly for Northern and Southern railroad conbecomes our's, and if the Tribune wants, editorially, to punch anybody's head, it can take a round at us. Taking into consideration, though, the giant mental capacities

Northern and Southern tailroad connection, her population to-day, by virtue of her advantages, would have been 50,000 instead of 10,000, or at most, 12,000 souls. And, with the coming tide of prosperity, the busy hum of machinery and a jumping commercial business would have been manifest at this moment, only to interest a this moment, only to interest a this moment, only to interest a this moment. of this mysterious gentleman, we do think he cought to put on the get up to their work.

You say, go to Louisville to strike the Ohio, and, by way of Morristown won't have the impertinence to hit and the French Broad Valley, to back again. We never do this. Asheville and Columbia to make connection with the ocean at We are not aggressive, and in the Charleston. This is your route, future as in the past, will allow the vour article to connect the Ohio and Tribune to baste us much as it pleases, but will never think of retailed and gaps only are to be filled.

Notwithstanding we have the Notwithstanding we have the Charleston you make 681 miles—not much, if any, shorter than from Louis-ville to New York. The point, howagainst us, we must still continue to ever, is established that it is 100 miles believe that our Washington man shorter than from Cincinnati, on the Ohio, to Charleston, by way of Chatwas entirely correct. If we are tanooga and Atlanta; and this is done probably to make Cincinnati feel that she has made a mistake in not looking Ciceros that are representing us in towards Knoxville instead of Chattanooga. No objection to this. Cincinnati should have looked to Cleveland, nati should have looked to Cleveland, ity on the Tribune's part to set us if determined to go west of Knoxville, and from that point dictated terms into the heart of the South by way of For instance, tell us what Bob Dalton, or by a route of her own through North Georgia to Atlanta-Taylor has accomplished since he not into Chattanooga direct, to be bottled up by rival interests. She should, in reality, have made Knoxville her objective point in Tennessee, and had fuil command of the situation.

Now, sir, give us another article. man who said that was another; for Let this show the distance from Chithim to go there himself, or he would knoxville, or from some point below cram something (presumably whisky straight, since he was a Democrat), down his throat." The Tribune Kingston; also the distance from Knoxville by way of Maryville and the valley of the Little Tennessee Manufactured by R. P. HALL & CO., speaks of Bob's canvass. After from the latter point to Charleston, struggling hard we are unable to Port Royal and Savannah respectively. And let it be noted that Augusta is see anything in it, since there are connected by an independent railroad at least two thousand circuses in with the three last named places the world, and each circus contains the winning way, from the Ohio to on an average three clowns, and which the Cincinnatians will delight each clown makes the same kind of canvass twice every day, Sundays (sometimes) excepted.

Which the Cincinnatians will delight to travel and have their freighting done, eventually, especially if the dog-in-the-manger policy of Louis-ville, Chattanooga et al is to prevail thought you will find the distance rom Cincinnati to the magnificent harbor of Port Royal, (which is the real spot, after all), by the route indicated, less than from Cincinnati to New York, and much less than from Louisville to Charleston by the line you suggest. Let Knoxville and Cincionati and Augusta shake hands over this route, and the real trunk road from the Ohio to the Atlantic will te half, if that many. Mossy Creek Notes.

Mossy Creek, Dec. 10, 1879. MR. EDITOR: Our little town is quite lively to-day, on account of our farmers bringing in their wheat and hogs for shipment.

No doubt the many friends of Mr W. B. Melvin will be glad to learn that he is improving and will be to be removed home in a few days. Mr. Melvin was very badly injured by the fall, but he bears his sufferings with Christian fortitude, and we think this accident should be a warning to the road in regard to the situation of their tanks at this place. They are standing right where it compels the train to sa d on the bridge while they are watering, and a person not acquainted with the situation is liable to step off, thinking they are at the depot. We think the road should take some steps to guard against this; either move the tanks or fix the bridge. We see that a great many places are being struck by various kinds of booms, but of all the booms we ever read or heard of, the boom that has struck our town is the most accursered boom that has ever visited any people or place, and that boom is the whisky boom. Men who have the air resound and reverberate families dependent upon them for their bread are seen reeling about on the streets in a state of beastly intoxication. They are to be pitied, to some to the creditors of the State.
